OUR EUROPEAN CORRESPONDENCE. Special Correspondence of the Louisville Journal

LONDON, January 20, 1866.

A thrill of herror ran through the United Kingdom at the intelligence of the loss of the Meiborne steam packet London, in the Bayof Biscay. Since the publication of the details of that hideous disaster, the tidings of another, and yet another similar calamity have been received, and it may with truth be said that in all parts of England there are homes that have been made desolate by the fearful gales of January, 1866. Almost as many hearts have been stricken sore by the fury of the elements as eleven years ago were crushed by any be Spanish insurrection has almost entirely ad to excite public attention. The General s commanding the Government forces seem be doing their best to let General Prim get way. Concha has been rebuked for the very silly pronunciamento in which he denounced General Prim as a coward. The Queen has refused to sign the document declaring him an cutlaw, and in two weeks more everybody expects to hear of his being again in favor at Madrid, with or without a change of ministry. The revolution would appear to be one of the kind that, despite the proverb, are made and opposed with rose-water.

As a hopeful sign of a future improvement in he horrible condition of the London streets. I miglad to mastize the man life has been appalling in mere numbers, but especially deplorable for the character of the victims. It is not as if two hundred or more coolies had been drowned on the coast of India, and swallowed up by the waves. It is not as if a like number of emigrants had been isguifed in mid ocean between Europe and Amerca. The "perfidious bark" London bore a rich freightage of educated manhood and we manhood, of youthful promise and mature excellence, pricelees contributions from the civilization of the mother country to a distant colony rising in the freshness of young nationality above the seas of Australasia. It bore the ornaments of the bar, the stage, the exchange, the university, and the pulpit. The hopes that have been lately entertained that the public gambling-house at Baden-Baden would be closed after the approaching season, may now be dismissed as futile. M. Benezet, the well-known proprietor, has just effected a thirty years' renewal of his lease of the Conversation House, and of his monopoly for the exhibition of rouge et noir, which will carry the evil down next generation of continental tourists. The westerly gales on the European'coast of he Atlantic, during the month of January, ave been known for many years. The number English journals should set themselves to discussing the modes by which the calamity might have been and should have been averted. One paper says the captain was rash and disregarded his barometer. He should not have eteamed cut of Plymouth. Another blames him for not having put back in time to have reached port again. But if steamers advertised to sail on a certain day were always to delay their departure because of threatening weather, no confidence could be placed in the schedules of the ocean transit. And, if Captains were to run into the nearest harbor of refuge every time the mercury fell an inch in the barometer, there would almost be an end to navigation. The real cause of the loss of the London was of wrecks on the English and French shores exceeds 400. There has been a fearful loss of numan life, and the destruction of property will amount to hundreds of thousands of pounds terling. On the 11th, the fine steamer London, from Plymouth, bound for Melbourne, in Ausralia, five days out, went down in the Bay of Biscay with 220 souls on board. On the following day the steamer Amelia, running in connecion with the overland route to India, which left Liverpool the same day the London left Plymouth, foundered in nearly the same latitude. The eminent English surgeon, Mr. William Ferguson, has been made a Baronet. In noticing this event, none of the London journalists have mentioned the very significant fact that no eminent medical man has ever been elevated to the peerage.

A duel recently came off in the neighborhood of Paris between Prince Achilles Murat and M. Henri de Rochefort, one of the writers for the the Figaro. The journalist had commented upon the interference of the Prince in a recent sale of a horse belonging to Md'lle Cora Pearl, the leader of the Parisian lorettes, in terms which the Prince deemed personal, and the hostile meeting was the consequence. Prince Jerome Bonaparte, formerly of Baltimore, was the bearer of the challenge. Both combatants having been slightly wounded, the seconds declared the honor of their principals respectively to be satisfied, and the affair was terminated.

ioos making for it. The English people admire the Princes Helena. She is said to be a very sweet, engaging, and highly accomplished Princess (of which your correspondent knows nothing), and she comes the nearest to be a very pretty young woman of all Victoria's children (upon which point, having seen her more than once across the theater, your correspondent considers himself qualified to speak). No doubt there is not a man, certainly there is not a woman, in all England who does not with her a good, loving, handsome husband, and would not gladly see her marry some fair-haired, blue-eyed, longimonstache German seranity or effulgency, and fling the old shoe after her as the happp pair went across Channel to his little, pampous, penarious principality of the Zoll-verelh. But to marry and to live in England is a very different affair. This involves another royal establishment, and makes a figure in the Bacget. Now, as the Prince s Helena is to make the good Prince Christian a citizen of England, his expenses and maintenance must be borne by England, and borne right magnificently, too. And to just Parliament in a good humor for voting a splendid allowance, the Queen determines graciously to open the session in person. Mind, I do not give you this as my opinion, but as the whisper of the hour. You recollect what Lord Byron, who knew his countrymen well, says about meddling with an Englishman's breeches pocket. The English, to dothem justice, have never been niggardly in their support of the Royal Family, but they well grumble over additional expenses. If the system retains the effects of a prior vaccination, a new one will not 'take,' and, if it does take a second or third time, this is proof that the system was liable to small-pox in some form. Records of liable to small-pox in some form. Records of the Prussian army show that, out of about forty thousand soldiers revaccinated, it 'took' in about one-third of the cases; amongst the Russian soldiers revaccinated, the number on which it had an effect a second time was about eighteen per cent; and of Danish soldiers, more than one-halt took a second time. Some persons, however, never can be revaccinated. It is believed that vaccination once perfectly performed has the effect of modifying an attack of small-pox at any stage of life. And it is contended that even after small-pox has commenced vaccination will modify the disease. Second attacks of small pox are referred to, but the mortality in such cases does not appear to NASHVILLE, TENN., Feb. 7, 1866. The Legislature is doing nothing which can iterest any one, and the deliberations of that onorable body are far more tiresome than batalion drill. Inquier-Mr. Speaker, I would beg leave to ask what is the main question?

The Speaker—The main question is the main question.

As there was no controverting that position, the honorable gentleman blinked out. Yesterday, after the question had been put on Dr. Travis's request, a gentleman rose to ask for infranation "I desire to vote understandingly. [The Speaker—The question is not open to debate.] I want to know if those who vote "aye" are voting in favor of the Doctor's request?" An affirmative answer greatly relieved this gentleman—at least that was the impression the incident made upon me. I have no desire to smile at or relicule the shortcomings of these statesmen. The fault may be mine, not theirs. I may be unable to appreciate the eloquence, the learning, and the statesmanship or these honorable gentlemen. I hope I am. Their existed.

In the Journal, a few days since, I saw a notice of the organization of the National Express Company, with the rules under which it was intended to operate. I have no interest in said Company, and do not wish to use your columns in advertising it. But it struck me that the originator of the scheme deserved the earnest thanks, warm and from the heart, of every American, North and South. If he could now get Summer, Wilson and Stevens to resign their seats in Congress, and give them lucrative and laborious positions in the Company, he would deferve half of President Johnson's salary, for he would thus simplify the plan of precentification and remove almost every obstasalary, for he would thus simplify the plan of reconstruction and remove almost every obstacle thereto. He is welcome to this last surgesstion, but if he undertakes it I do not believe he will succeed with those constitutional fermenters of mischief. But this company is bound to be most successful pecuniarly, and to be productive of only the best results politically and nationally. The Adams, American, and Haraden's Express Companies will fretain their friends, as their honorable course has and will deserve, but this new company appeals at once to the sympathy, love, and pride of the people, and will be more honored day by day, it will assist the people—the business classes—in becoming better acquainted. The soldiers know and respect each other sufficiently alleady. Of the hopes and feelings of the Southern peeple but little is known North, if I am to judge by what I see in Northern papers.

The Louisville Journal has never lost the respect of the people. Its course has not always pleased the people of either section, but it has saved by the steamer Laconia.

The King of Prussia has conferred on King Victor Emanuel the insignia of the Order of the Black Eggle.

England must insist that steemers designed to tempt the stormy sees that beat around her coasts should be as strong as it is within the art of the ship-builder to make them, or the tragedy, the accumulated tragedies of the last fortnight, will be enacted over again with each recurring winter. LATIONS.—The able and adroit report from the committee on Federal Relations, which was ever. The same fundamental principle applies presented to the State Senate on the 3d inst. to both cases. In 1860, when the territorial (Hon. John L. Helm being the author of it), slavery question was an alarming source of a remarkable mixture of sound and erroneous principles. We disclaim any partisan spirit in the remarks we shall make upon a certain clause of it, to-day. The entire report is an effort to set forth the constitutional relations of the States to the Federal Union, and the late anti-slavery amendment of the Constituion is made the text of the dissertation. It is held by Mr. Helm that that amendment is un- the subject of slavery in the Territories, the constitutional, upon the ground that it is Fedtucky's domestic sovereignty, by which slavery was guaranteed and secured. The report says: The State of Kentucky, in the exercise of the highest attribute of sovereignty under the reevernment of the people a Constitution, provisions of which the right of masters

As we have repeatedly demonstrated hereto fore, the argument against the Amendment The Freedmen and the Future.—We find in the Jackson Clarion an article which confirms what we have recently stated, and derived from excellent authority; that is, that the negroes of Mississippi are beginning to realize the duty and happiness of work.

At present, we think this information of general application. How it will be when the that it is a measure of Federal interference character, and which the States alone have a right to control, is as radical a misrepresentation as was ever made of a public measure. It is true neither in principle nor fact that the Amendment involved Congressional interference with slavery in the States. Congress simply much and continuous labor is necessary to the saving of the crops, one cannot predict. Let us, however, accept the facts which are before us, and reason to the agreeable coaclusions, which indicate—the taxes aside—that we shall bring from our soll what will encourage industry, and furnish a stimulus to hope.

To speak honestly, we are hopeful of the future of these States. We do not see how they are long lack managashle labor. fifth article of the Constitution, the proposition itself having no validity except by the senarate, independent action of the several States of the Union. Let us calmly look at the ques-

Had Congress, instead of proposing an amendment to the Constitution, enacted a law directly affecting the existence of elavery in the began, and will exist until the general confiscation, there would have been Federal interfergration. There is no use in men's flying in the gration. There is no use in men's flying in the gration. There is no use in men's flying in the gration. ever, the whole action contemplated on the subby them separately and freely. The proposition to amend the Federal Constitution was therefore nothing more nor less than a proposition that the States themselves should prohibit slavery forever. The history of the formation of the Federal Constitution plainly shows that our forefathers contemplated just such action as this by the respective States. The following the Constitutional Convention did not sustain the position announced in Senator Helm's

On the 8th of September, 1787, Mr. Madison moved to postpone the consideration of the proposition then pending, in order to take up the following: The Legislature of the United States, whenever two

This is the same as the text of the main clause f article five, with an amendment afterward atroduces, so as to require a convention on populcation of two thirds of the States, and with few merely verbal amendments.

Mr. Hamilton seconded the motion, so it was autoported in the beginning by two of the clearest minds of the convention.

Mr. Rutledge said he never could agree to give a power by which the articles relating to slaves might be altered by the States not interested in that property and prejudiced against it. In order to obviate this objection, the first provise was added in these words:

Provided, That no amendment which may be made prior to the year 1808 shall in any manner affect the first and fourth clauses of the ninth section of the first article.

and fourth clauses of the ninth section of the first article.

It will be observed that by its own terms this provise cased to operate after 1898.

When the same article again came up for consideration, on the 15th of September, Mr. Sherman said he thought it reasonable that the provise in favor of the States importing slaves should be extended so as to provide that no State should be affected in its internal police or deprived of its equality in the Senate; and he forthwith moved to add the following, as a further provise:

Whereupon Mr. Madison said: "Begin with these special provisos, and every State will inthese special provisos, and every State will in-sist on them for its boundaries, exports," &c. The motion of Mr. Sherman was then nega-tived by a vote of three States to eight. Mr. Sherman then moved to strike out the article altogether, but this was negatived by a vote of two States to eight, and one divided. It was then that, on motion of Mr. Gouverneur Mor-ris, the second provise, "that no State, without ris, the second proviso, 'that no State, without its consent, shall be deprived of its equal suffage in the Senate,' was carried without a dissenting voice. This second provise, mark you, differed from Mr. Sherman's proposition in this only, that it omitted the words "be affected in its in ternal police."

Now here is an express refusal by the convention to impose upon the power of amendment a restriction that would have exempted the "in- affairs to their normal condition throughout the rnal police" of the States from its operation. The restriction was asked for as a concession to slavery, was opposed by Mr. Madison, and was voted down largely. It cannot be said that the South did not then desire some security in the Constitution against emancipation; for Mr. Pinckney, on three occasions, asked for just such a provision; and it was frequently urged by Mr. Rutledge, and others, that North Caro lina, South Carolina, and Georgia would de mand even more, and would never agree to the Constitution unless their right to import slaves be untouched; in regard to all which demand and threats the sentiment of the convention could not be better shown than by citing the ever-memorable remark of Mr. Madison that "he thought it wrong to admit in the Constitution the idea that there could be property in man" (Elliot's Debates, volume five, pages 357, 457, 478, 486, 531, and 551). It is but fair to infer from the admitted opposition of a large majority of the framers of the Constitution to the hearty support of the true Union men of slavery that they intended that the country should ultimately get rid of that evil by a resort to the power of amendment, and more especially is that inference justified when the further fact is considered, that the convention actually refused to exclude "the internal police of the States" from the operation of the clause of the officers and men.

According to the distribution of power in our republican system, the Legislatures of three-fourths of the States, when acting together, embody the national will, and are, therefore, no steps backward; that he shall not change competent to modify or amend the fundamental aw of the nation; and, in the exercise of this | will be filled to overflowing when he sees the great power, the Legislatures of three fourths of the States have already engrafted several in all its members fully restored. amendments upon the Federal Constitution

Then it was that the secessionists demanded that certain local interests should be more amply protected by Federal power, and it was freely conceded by both par-ties that such protection could be secured only by an amendment to the Federal Constitution, sed by the Legislatures of three-fourths of the States; and to stay the tide of revolution, to those who want to change the color of white restore peace and harmony in the Union, in 1861 the Congress of the United States proposed to the States a Constitutional amend. ment which should forever guaranty the institution of slavery where it existed. Had threefourths of the Legislatures of the States, regardless of the other fourth, ratified that proposed amendment, it would now be a part of the supreme law of the land, anything in the Constitution of any State "to the contrary notwithstanding." The whole Kentucky Congressional Delegation, headed by the lamented Crittenden voted for that amendment. Each one of the delegation, we believe, had repeatedly avowed that Congress had no power whatever to legislate upon slavery in the States; but, in supporting the smendment, they did not violate their previous avowals on that subject, for the very the Constitution! What a thing to set itself up clear reason that the mere proposal of the amendment by Congress was not Congressional visiation upon, nor Federal interference with, the local slavery question, but, rather, a proposition from Congress, presented in the constitutional mode, and the only one in which it could properly have been presented, by which s themselves, separately and independ-

We retired from the Chamber at 111/2 o'clock, pending the question to grant to Mr. Isham erson the privilege of putting a railway track on First street from Main to the river. The Council meets again on Thursday even ing, February 15th.

A SLIPPERY CUSTOMER.—About eight o'clock ast night a row occurred near the Postoffice, between a young man named Seay and another person whose name we could not learn. Seay knocked his antagonist in the head with a brickbat, and tried to beat a Officers Kendall and Dennis caught Scar, but he got away from them, nd fell into the hands of Officers Antle and White, who happ ned to be near by. But Seay was bent upon freedom from arrest, and broke ose from the latter-named officers, whereupon White fired at him and brought him to the ground. The horror-stricken officers picked up the apparently lifeless body of Seay and carried it into a drug-store for surgical aid. Antle was left in charge of the dying man, while White hastened to report at headquarters. But lo! in a few minutes Seay arose from the dead, outran Policeman Antle, and made good his escape. The police officers were left to enjoy this joke very much like the fellow who was left with the bag to hold.

A NEGEO WOMAN BADLY BURNED .- Quite a ensation was produced at the residence of Dr. Scorch, on Brook street, between Broadway and Jacob, between one and two o'clock P. A RUNAWAY FELON.-Capt. Alex Gillmore ef of Police, yesterday received a dispatch rom Cincinnati directing him to arrest one Anton Cagan, a Frenchman, who had taken passage on the steamer St. Charles, of the People's Line. When the St. Charles came into port, Cagan was found on board, arrested, and taken to jail. He is charged with the commission of a felony at Cincinnati, and will be held until the arrival of an officer from that city.

John A. McDonald, who some time ago feloniously obtained from the Postoffice a draft for five thousand dollars, was brought before the Police Judge again yesterday. The case was continued for hearing this evening. The bona fide John A. McDonald is in the city to prosecute his namesake for obtaining the raft under false pretenses. Colonel Selby Harney has the plaintiff's interests in hand.

ENTERPRISING—In the Democrat of Sunday we published the full statistics of the hog slaughtering around the falls, which was transferred to the columns of the New Albany Ledger of Tueeday and copied into the Journal of yesterday, appearing in their local columns as an original item. This is quite enterprising on the part of our neighbors.

SOME PARTICULARS OF THE LOSS OF THE STEAMER W. R. CARFER.-Two gentlemen passengers on the steamer Luna (which left New Orleans on the 50th of January), reached Cincinnati day before yesterday, and furnished the Commercial some particulars relating to the loss of the W. R. Carter, the wreck of which they passed a short time after the catastrophe. The first indications that the passengers upon the Luna had of the disaster, were parts of the wreck and cargo floating past, about daylight, on Friday morning, a few miles above Vicksburg. The Luna continued to pass parts of the drifting wreck for about fifteen miles, when she was met by the Evening Star, which had overtaken the wreck in time to pick up and save some twenty-five or twenty-six persons, found clinging to heards, cotton hales swamped boats, and other drifting matter. Among the saved, and on the Evening Star, were but five females, though it was reported there were many lady passengers on board the W. R.

Carter when the disaster occurred. From concurring accounts, given by the passengers who escaped with their lives, the folblew up at about 4 'o'clock Friday morning, Feb. 2, about twenty-five miles above Vicksburg, and was in the middle of the river at the time, and running slowly. The noise attending the explosion was very slight, not sufficient even to awaken the passengers. The boat caught fire immediately. The first warning many had of danger was the fire in their state rooms. The boat did not sink for upward of one hour after the explosion. The pilot, who escaped, says he and his brother was at the wheel at the time, and his brother exclaimed, "What is this?" He replied, "Don't know, un-

A young man from Missouri was awakened by the fire, when he sprang up and climbed out of his state-room through the flames, burning his hands very badly, and fell almost exhausted into the water, where he climbed upon a floating cotton-bale and held tast nearly one hour, when he was pi ked up by the Evening Star.

A gentleman, said to be from Louisville, jus married, was on the fated boat with his wife. and was awakened by fire in his state-room, when he rushed forward to see what was the matter, and became separated from his wife by the flames, when he shouted to her to jump overboard, and sprang into the water himself, but he could not induce her to follow. He swam about the boat for some time, trying in vain to convince her of his ability to save her, when he swam ashore, and she perished in the flames. He threw away, it was said, $17,000 in

A waiter (colored) forcibly dragged a lady from her state-room and threw her overboard, to save her from burning to death, and the poor lady was drowned. It seems that the women in general clustered upon deck and perished in the flames rather than risk the water, while the men perished in the water, vainly endeavoring to persuade the women to trust themselves to the river. One of the saved tells of seeing dozens of men in the water, clinging to each other, and drowning in the truggle. Another tells of seeing them become chilled and fall back helplessly in the river, neeting their fate.

To add to the terror of the scene were a number of horses and mules, which swam round and round the burning boat. As the Luna passed up, the poor animals could be seen truggling and shivering in the water, close to the bank, which they were unable to climb. only one was to be seen that had gained a footold on the shore. Everything indicated a most ightful disaster. Most of the persons saved had nothing but their night-clothes, and suffered extremely.

NEW ALEANY ITEMS .- From the Ledger of The religious meetings being held in the several churches of the city continue to excite the teation of the people. A report has been put in circulation that the antic and Mississippi Steamship Company had failed. There is not a shadow of foundation for the report. The company represents a capital of over five millions of dollars, and could stand much heavier losses than any yet sustained. By a despatch received last night, we lear that first engineer Reuben Townsend, of the illfated W. R. Carter, died on Monday last of his injuries. His body will arrive here to-morrow morning on the steamer Morning Star, and e buried by the Odd Fellows, of which order he was a worthy member.

The contract for the building of the new Music Hall, has been let by the board of directors to John Haley, of Frankfort, Ky. The brick work will be done by John B. Crawford, of this city. This building, when completed, will be one of the finest structures and will contain the largest and best hall in the State. The dimensions are as follows: Depth of building 110 feet; front, 80 feet; height, 51 feet.

From the Daily Commercial of yesterday The work on the new Court-house still progresses. The tinners are busily engaged in putting on the roof, which will probably be finished this evening. Several days since the Mayor sold the Osceo la engine to the authorities of Bowling Green Ky., for $700. Yesterday the purchase money was paid and the machine shipped on the J. T. McCombs. Our citizens have a grand treat in store for to-night in the lecture to be delivered at Woodward Hall by John Godfrey Saxe, one of the greatest poets, wits, and satirical humorists our A recruiting office for the regular army ha been opened in this city, on the corner of Main and Third streets. We understand that quite a number of young men who are still "eager for the fray" have already put down their names. The billiard match in this city on Tuesday ight terminated in the defeat of our New Albany champion by the Louisvilian. It was won by the latter, Mr. Fink, by forty-two points. It is supposed that another match between these gentlemen will be arranged, and take place at no distant day.

Debate on Constitutional Amendment

About the Judiciary Department.

Mr. Clark, of New Hampshire, introduced bill, in addition to the several acts, to establish and amend the judicial system of the United States. Referred to the Judiciary Commit-states. Referred to the Judiciary Commit-tee.

It provides for ten Circuit Judges, as at pres-ent, the amount of salary left in blank, who shall take the following oath: "I, —, do sol-emnly swear, or affirm, that I will administer justice without respect to persons, and do equal to all, and will in all things faithfully and equate to an, and win m an inings faithfully and impartially discharge and perform all duties in-cumbent on me as Circuit Judge, according to the best of my abilities and understanding of the Constitution and laws of the United

Sec. 3 authorizes an appeal in cases involving fifty dollars from the final judgment and decrees of a District Court to their Circuit Court, or without regard to the amount in controversy where the question involved is one of general importance.

Court, or without regard to the amount in controversy where the question involved is one of general importance.

Section 4 allows an appeal to be taken from the Circuit to the Supreme Court in cases involving two thousand dollars, whether suits of equity, brought into court by original process, or actions of admiralty and maratime jurisdiction, or cases appealed from other courts, but in special cases for due cause shown to the Chief and Associate Justice of the Supreme Court, an appeal may be allowed without regard to the amount in controversy. Exceptions are made under acts in relation to inventors or for the collection of import duties.

Section one provides that the present laws shall remain in full force, except as herein before stated, as far as relates to circuit or district courts, their judges, powers, proceedings, clerks, title, and place of holding courts, of division of opinion, &c.

Mr. Doolittle presented the credentials of John Pool, Senator-elect from North Carolina, and, in doing so he stated that he owed it to the Senate as well as to himself to state that Mr. Pool has always been a devoted friend of the Union. He was the Union candidate for Governor of the State in 1860 b fore there was any danger of secession. He canvassed the State and opposed secession by every means in his power to the very last. He was the Union candidate for Governor of the State in 1860 before there was any danger of secession. He canvassed the State and opposed secession by every means in his power to the very last. After the ordinance of secession was passed he retired to private life and refused to take any part in political affairs until the peace movement commenced in North Carolina, in which he took an active part, and did all in his power to embarrass the rebel anthorities. The credentials were laid on the table.

Mr. Cowan presented a petition asking for Mr. Cowan presented a petition asking for the repeal of the homestead law, that the pro-ceeds of sales by law may be applied for the pay-ment of the public debt. Referred to the Com-mittee on Finance. Mr. Howe presented a petition of the clitzens

Mr. Howe presented a petition of the chizens of Wisconsin asking Congress to spend no more time in discussing the question as to whether the Southern States are in or out of the Union, but that they proceed to legislate so as to prevent the shedding of innocent blood in the nth, and to protect the loyal men there, both ack and white. Referred to the Committee on Reconstruction.

Mr. Stewart offered a resolution, which was adopted, instructing the Judiciary Committee to inquire what legislation, if any, is necessary o protect the citizens of the United States in Itah in their civil rights.

Mr. Lane, of Kansas, moved that the Senators ect from Colorado be admitted to seats on th aced a bill to repeal the act athorizing the settlement of claims against to United States for property used or destroyed y the army and navy in the late rebellions lates. Referred to the Committee on Military Affairs.

On motion of Mr. Nye, the bill for the relief of J. B. Ritterhouse, Fieet Paymaster of the Pacific Squadron, to indemnify him for loss of money stolen from his sa'e, was taken up and assed.

Mr. Morgan called up the bill to extend the ime for withdrawing goods from the bonded warehouses.

The expiration of the morning hour prevented final action upon the bill, and the House joint resolution to amend the Constitution on the subject of representation was taken up.

Mr. Lane, of Indians, spoke at length on the proposition. He approached the discussion on the proposition. ant. Lane, of Indiana, spoke at length on the proposition. He approached the discussion on the subject with a sense of its great importance, urging Senators to merge the partisan in the patriot. Speaking of the constitutional guarantee of a republican form of government Mr. Lane asked if the constitution of North Carolina was republican in form. He did not think it was. The President, as commander in chief or was. The President, as commander in coner of the army had a right to appoint Provisional Governors when the war ceased. It was the Governors wheft the war ceased. It was the duty of the President to recognize Provisional Governors in the rebel States. The States that were in rebellion had lost their connection with the Government, such as it was, before Mr. Lincoln and Mr. Johnson so distinctly recognized in their acts. Repeatedly the power of the President over the rebel States ceased with the convening of Congress, and it was with the Congress of the U.S. to fix the status of the seeded States or State. Under the Constitution it has no severeign power to act, except in so far as its acts accord with the provisions of the Constitution. The lately seceded States are of States in the true definithe provisions of the Constitution. The lately sececide States are not States in the true definition of the term. They have forfeited their rights as such. They have rebelled against the Constitution. They have cost the Government three hundred million of dollars, and one-half a million of lives. The proposition to admit these States at present is simply monstrous. We are called on to compromise. these States at present is simply monstrous. We are called on to compromise. What have we accomplished by comprise? What act of conciliation tendered to the rebels had any effect during the war? Not one. He wanted it known that the rebellion was put down by force and by force alone. So he agreed with the President. This resolution on reconstruction and suffrage ought to be left with the States. If the President had a right to say who shall vote. He should wait till the last trumpet of the rebels to judgment before he should admit them to these halls. He did not know that the constituction would be to pass an amendment to the Constitution, and after one, two, or five years, every man who can read the Constitution of the United States shall vote. He would disfranchies rebels for the same space of time, and when he admitted them to vote again he would let negroes vote with them. We were not ready for restoration upon rebel votes or would be begroes vote with them. We were not ready for restoration upon rebel votes or colored votes. It was the duty of Congress, and not the President, to present a plan of re-construction to the country. It was the duty construction to the country. It was the duty of the United States to see that every State had a republican form of government, but this could not be done without the aid of Congress. The late rebel States are not in a condition to be admitted. Nine out of ten of the citizens of the Southern States are rebels. He would not send rebels to Congress. Every man elected to Congress from Tennessee could take the oath of office required of all members. In Arkansas too, he believed men had been elected who might be admitted. One thing was certain, no man from any State would ever be a Senator with his consent until he had taken the oath. On motion of Mr. Johnson the further consideration of the Constitutional Amendment was postponed until one o'clock to-morrow. Trumbull, from Judiciary Committee, reported a bill for the enlargement of the power of the Freedmen's Bureau with the House amendments. Mr. Trumbull moved to agree to the amtundments except that one which restricted operations of the bill to States in which the writ of habeas corpus was suspended on February 1st, 1862. This amendment would exempt Delaware, Maryland and Missouri from the operations of the bill.

Mr. Guthrie rose to reply to some remarks on the loyalty of Kentucky made by the Senator from Indiana (Mr. Lane). He denied that Kentucky was ever disloyal or in the hands of disloyal men. He knew Kentucky was loyal, and that since the Governor who was in office when the rebellion commenced went out of power the Governor and Legislature had been always loyal.

Mr. Sherman said the rebels of Kentucky were the most troublesome during the war. The present condition of Kentucky justified Congress in applying the Freedmen's Bureau to her. nstruction to the country. It was the duty the United States to see that every State had

Mr. Henderson would not vote for the House amendment. The only way to project freedmen was to give them ballot.

Mr. Sumer—That's it.

Mr. Henderson resumed, saying if he were a rebel he would rather take the unqualified negro suffrage than wear the badge of this Freedmen's Bureau bill amendment of the House, with the exception stated. with the exception stated.

The amendments by the House, except the ne restricting the operation of the tates in which the writ of habeas uspended February 1, 1862, were agreed and the bill then passed. Adjourned.

Generals Thomas and Fisk were detained to-day en route from Washington to Nashville by missing the railroad connections. General Thomas remarked in conversation that the state of feeling in the South was as good as could be expected, and that the work of restoration was progressing favorably, although it would take many years to efface the animosities of the past four years.

Governor Morton has been heard from under date of Paris, of the 16th ult. He had submitted to the operation of 'moxa,' burning the spine, with good effect, and was able to walk about.

Washington, Feb. 8.

Seventeen persons have died from small-pox in this county during the past two weeks.

Mr. Clark, of New Hampshire, introduced a bill, in addition to the several acts, to establish why the blacks should not hate and dread the poor whites when in a state of slavery, for it was from this class that their masters received their slave-catchers, slave-drivers, and overseers. They were the men called on upon all occasione, by the masters, when any slendish outrage was to be committed upon the slave. Besides, if it even were true, as you allege, that the hostility of the blacks toward the poor whites, it must necessarily be the same in a state of freedom as in a state of slavery. In the name of heaven we reverently ask how can you, in view of your professed desire to promote the welfare of the black man, deprive him of all the means of defense, and clothe him whom you regard as his enemy in the panoply Matamorss on the 1st.

It is runnored that Canales was at Reynosa with a Liberal force. Thomas Escabeda with another force was besieging Monteray, and Mendez with another force was besieging Tampico, none of which are believed to be at Brownsville. Toronto, C. W., Feb. 8.

The Montreal and Toronto papers express satisfaction that the provincial delegates have not accepted the terms proposed for a continuation of the reciprocity tray. The Globe this morning says: One happy result of the course adopted by the United States will be the speedy confederation of the provinces, the absolute necessity of which is now apparent. With the confederacy, improvement of internal communication, the throwing open of lands to free settlement, the gradual reduction of the customs and tariffs, the opening of new markets, a vigorous prosecution of our fishing enterprises, the opening up of the Northwest, the commencement of an enlarged system of navigation, a wise revision of of all the means of defense, and clothe him whom you regard as his enemy in the panoply of political power. Can it be that you would recommend a policy which would arm the strorg and cast down the defenceless. Can you, by any possibility or reasoning, regard this as just or wise? Experience proves they are oftenest abused who can be abused with the greatest impunity. Men are whipped oftenest who are whipped easiest. Peace between races is not to be secured by degrading one race and exalting another; by sixty prover to one receased with cured by degrading one race and exalting another; by giving power to one race and withholding it from another; by maintaining the state of equal justice between all parties, first pure and then peaceable. On the colonization theory that you were pleased to broach, very much could be said.

It is impossible to suppose, that, in view of the usefulness of the black man in time of peace
as a laborer in the South and in time of war as a soldier at the North and the growing prospectfor his rights among the people, and his increasin daptation to a high state of cultivation in thi his native land, there can come a time when he can be removed from this country without a terrible shock to its prosperity and peace. The trial of Captain Semmes, it is understood, has been delayed thus long for the reason that all the proceedings that are requisite to its commencement are not yet agreed on. The names of many parties of high position in merchant ervice, including the names of upward of fifty ship captains who have suffered from depredations of the accused, are known. Some of them will probably be summoned at the proper time.

It would doubtless facilitate matters if any of those who have served on the Alabama as officers or among the crew whose testimony would be allowed either for defense or prosecution should send their address to the Judge Advocate at the Navy Department. The Case of Pelecier, the Murderer. A New Trial is to be Asked For. General Butler and General Grant.

Butler Declines to Visit Grant. The First National Bank of Ark.

Arrest of a Female Counterfeiter. New York, Feb. 8.

The counsel for Pelicier, recently convicted of the muder of Senor Otero, in Brooklyn, has given notice of his intention to move for a new trial of the case, on the ground that testimony sufficient to exculpate the prisoner can be produced.

The Herald's Washington special says: The fact is published that, in response to one of General Gent's cards of invitation to the recent receptism, General Butler addressed a very curt note of declination, stating that he neither wished to hold personal intercourse with the Lieutenant-General nor any of his family, and must decline the present or any future profer in that direction. General Grant good-naturedly destroyed the note as soon as read, and determined, if it ever appeared in print, to know positively whether it was furnished by any one except General Butler himself. Cherishing no personal ill-will toward General Butler, he invited him, among other celebrities, and feels that in so doing he placed himself light on the record.

The colored delegation occupied nearly an hour, but at 1 o'clock the superintendents of public schools, now holding a convention in this city, were presented by Mr. Northrup, of the Massachusetts Board of Education, the President of the convention. The interview was cordial and pleasent.

The Postoffice Department lately advertised for bids for carrying the mails on 870 routes in Georgia, Mississippi, Louisiana, Alabama, and Arkansos. Only 804 bids were made. As many of them are duplicates and triplicates, it is not probable that half the routes will be let. In some cases the price asked is higher than it was in 1860, although the number of letters carried will be nuch less. The South makes haste slowly to supply herself with postal facilities.

The Pails correspondent of the London Times gives a minute account of the circumstances under which the Emperor Napoleon dispatched M. Lallaird on a special mission to Mexico. He was hurried to the palace, when the Emperor said he wanted him to set out without delay to Mexico, with a message from him to Maximilian, that he considered that he (Napoleon) had fulfilled all the obligations impored on him, and that the time had now arrived when Maximilian must depend upon his own resources, without the help of the Empty. Washington, Feb. 8. WASHINGTON, Feb. 8.

Among the many petitions received by the Treasmy Department from persons having cattle in Carade, asking permission to land them in the United States, is one from an Ohio cattle-dealer, who, previous to the enactment of the law forbidding the importation of foreign stock, had sent to Canada 1,200 head of beef cattle and 300 sheep to be fattened. He asks the Secretary of the Treasmy to permit the return of his cattle; but on account of the existing regulations, his request cannot be compiled with.

proved unable to accommodate themselves to the charged condition of offsits, we might well despair of the future. It is only maniacs, who sit among the graves, cutting themselves with stones. We have paid the last rites to the Past; we have buried it with all the bonors of war. Now, like brave scidiers returning from the grave of a comrade, let us change the elegiac strains for more inspiring music; let us go forth to fight new battles and gain fresh victories in the contests of penceful industry, whose trophies are more substantial than those of war, and whose triumphs will cast sunshine upon a desclate landscape, and make it smile amidst its tears. What though the political horizon be overcast? We have our hands and our lives. There is no change in physical nature. All the objects of that greet our eyes—the fertile plains, the ground old mountains, the beautiful rivers, associated with the days of our childhood—still remain. The earth is as fertile as of yore; the Dr. George S. Gale, of No. 51 Eighth avenue, New York, has been appointed U. S. pension examining surgeon. How Men "Bust Up"—Men with unassuming wives never fail. It is the husband of such women as Men. Dash and Lady Brilliant who details a wafer big enough for target exercise. The desire of a New York feminine is to outshine her neighbors—not in mental acquirements, but in gingerbread ornaments and gold-edged scuttles. If Men. Dash gets up a game supper—weodcocks stuffed with gold dust—Lady Brilliant takes the wind out of her sails by getting up another, in which the prevailing dish will be birds of paradise swimming in gravy made of melted pearls. It is this rivalry, and net "dabbling in railroad stocks," that bring ruinstion to the fast men of Wall street. The "ill foitune" of which they so much complain, is no more nor less than a brainless wife. If they would come back to happiness, they must direct their attention, not to the fluctuations of the stock market, but the ruinous absurdities of their own firesides. Thousand dollar repasts don't pay, while the merchant who purchases one hundred dollar handkerchiefs for a "duck of a wife," should not wonder it the time eventually comes when a "goose of a husband," will lack shirts, or be but ill supplied with them.

The Chicago people are intent on having a cotton factory. The entire capital stock proposed is $500,000, of which $200,000 have already been subscribed. spoint of satety lies somewhere between twelve and eighteen degrees below zero, inasmuch as y in the abrence of sleet and moisture the crop has never been killed at twelve and has never survived eighteen degrees below zero. And my impression is, that, although in your uniform elimate the point of safety may be as low as fitteen minus, yet we will not be likely to see it fixed lower than fourteen, if so low.

The presence of sleet or rain greatly increases the power of cold to injure the peach, and as it the season advances the increased flow of sap produces the same result. Esr example, I bave known fourteen degrees above zero at the middle of March, when the buds were swelled until the bractae or scales seemed transparent and glossy, to kill a crop that stood ten degrees below zero in mid winter before the sap had started. And yet later, after the petals become red, twenty three degrees above zero is more than any varieties of the peach can stand, except seedlings and other large petaled sorts.

By the way, this skort petal construction of the finer peaches, is in my opinion, the only respect in which that class of fruits fail to compare favorably with seedlings in hardiness; they are on that account slightly more liable to be winter-killed, and any observer, on examining in the spring, will find when the petals have become red, but are still not ready to expand, the female organ in the short petaled varieties preturning beyond the points of the petals, its stig-
